

The Africa Evidence Network (AEN) is a community of researchers, practitioners, and decision-makers interested in evidence-informed decision-making (EIDM) for Africa. Sustainability of the AEN is achieved through exciting activities...

The AEN's secretariat is provided by the Africa Centre for Evidence (ACE) based at the University of Johannesburg in South Africa. ACE is a research centre specialising in the production of evidence syntheses and the use of these by decision-makers.

Through various events the AEN offers a platform from which members are able to network, capacity share, and collaborate on issues of local or regional importance to further embed EIDM within African policies and programmes.

Evolution of Evidence

The events offered by the AEN began with the 2014 Colloquium hosted in Johannesburg; it was incredibly well-received by all delegates.

Evidence Conferences

The biennial conference of the AEN functions to showcase the EIDM work happening on the continent and internationally, allow members the chance to network with those outside their sectors, and facilitate peer-to-peer learning on EIDM.

Evidence+ Events

These events are intended to give AEN members the chance to deepen their connections with others in their countries between the biennial conferences, and allow members to collaborate on issues of country or regional importance.
